Oregon Land Matters

We lay before our readers the following interesting correspondence

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
February 11 1871

HON GEO H WILLIAMS U S Senate—Sir I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 9th inst addressed to the Secretary of the Interior, respecting swamp lands in the State of Oregon and by him referred to this Office for reply.

I have to state that the attention of the Governor was called to the act of March 12 1860, extending the provisions of the swamp grant to the States of Minnesota and Oregon, by letter from this Office of date May 21 1860, and again December 27, 1860, in which letters the State authorities were requested to elect, whether or not, they would make their selections of swamp lands by agents in the field or by an examination of the field notes of public surveys.

No action in the matter appears to have been taken by the State authorities, so far as this Office is advised, and consequently nothing has been done towards carrying out the provisions of said act.

The surveying records of this Office show a very limited extent of swamp lands over which the lines of public surveys have been extended and which will enure to the State of Oregon under the provisions of the act of Congress referred to.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
W W CURTIS Act. Com'r

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
January 11 1871

HON GEORGE H WILLIAMS, United States Senate—Sir I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt by reference from you, of a certified copy of a joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Oregon of the 20th October, 1870, relative to indemnity school selections under the act of January 7, 1853, and in reference to the subject thereof I enclose herewith a copy of a letter of this date from this Office to the Registers and Receivers of the District Land Offices in Oregon. On receipt from them of the report therein called for, you will be further advised on the subject.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOS. S. WILSON, Commissioner

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
January 11, 1871

Register and Receiver, Roseburg, Oregon—Gentlemen The Hon George H. Williams, of the United States Senate, has filed in this Office a certified copy of a joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Oregon, of the 20th October, 1870, instructing the Senators and requesting the Representative of the State in Congress "to secure from the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States an approval of the selections of the indemnity school lands taken in conformity to an act of Congress of the United States, approved January 7, 1853, entitled 'An Act to amend an Act entitled An Act to establish the Territorial Government of Oregon,' approved August 14, 1848,' and in conformity with the law of the State of Oregon, and that said approval be transmitted to the Registers of the several Land Offices in the State of Oregon, with instructions that said Registers shall immediately notify the Board of Commissioners of the Common School Fund of said approval."

In view of the foregoing, I have to request that you refer to the above cited act of January 7, 1853, on page 150, vol 10 Statutes at Large, which authorized selections to be made for school purposes by such officer as the Legislature of the Territory of Oregon should designate, of equivalent tracts in lieu of any otherwise disposed of in sections 16 and 36, reserved for schools, and proceed to make an examination, with notice to the Board of Commissioners aforesaid, in order to determine exactly what tracts were selected in accordance with its provisions, in your district, and the tracts in lieu of which they were taken respectively, with the date of selection, by whom made, and the act of the Territorial Legislature under which done. Having ascertained these facts, you will embody the same in a list which you will make up and forward to this Office to show (1st) the tract selected; (2d) the date of selection, (3d) the tract in lieu of which taken, (4th) by what officer the selection was made, and (5th) the act authorizing him to select, according to the form of list herewith enclosed as an example.

You will also obtain from the State authorities an authenticated copy of the act or acts of the Territorial Legislature providing for making the alleged selections, and report the same, with the list to be prepared, on receipt of which the selections will be examined in this Office and appropriate action taken thereon.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed) JOS. S. WILSON, Commis'r

HOW THE LONDON TIMES WAS SENT TO PARIS—The "long columns of announcements in The London Times, intended for friends in Paris, have for some time been a frequent subject of remark, and people have wondered what chance there was of their ever reaching the eyes for which they were meant. The means adopted for this purpose are explained in The Times of Jan 30.

Those pages of the paper which contained communications to relatives in Paris were photographed with great care by the London Stereoscopic and Photographic Company on pieces of thin and almost transparent paper, about an inch and a half in length by an inch in width. On the impressions there could be seen by the naked eye only two legible words, The Times, and six narrow brown bands representing the six columns of printed matter forming a page of the newspaper. Under the microscope, however, the brown spaces become legible, and every line of the newspaper was found to have been distinctly copied, and with greatest clearness. The photographs were sent to Bordeaux for transmission thence by carrier pigeon to Paris. When received there they were magnified, by the aid of a magic lantern to a large size and thrown upon a screen. A staff of clerks immediately transcribed the messages and sent them off to the places indicated by the advertisers.

DEATH OF "MOON HOAX" LOCKE.—The New York Standard, February 16th, has the following:

Richard Adams Locke the author of the celebrated Moon hoax died yesterday on Staten Island, at the age of seventy four. The incident of his life and which has made him known to fame, was the authorship of a pretended account of the appearance of the moon as purported to be seen in 1835 by Sir John Herschell, the celebrated astronomer, when he visited the cape of Good Hope with his immense telescope. The minute and technical description which the account gave of a newly discovered habitable world, with its winged population and strange animals deceived thousands of well educated persons. The pretended source was the Edinburgh Scientific Journal and many savans in the country actually wrote to the editor for further information. The Moon hoax was a great success, and it was much admired even after its spuriousness was discovered, for the ingenuity of its description especially of minor details. This caused it to be republished in 1859, and had it not been for the imposture, the name of Richard Adams Locke would not have been thought worthy of being handed down to posterity.

The San Domingo Commission

INTERVIEW WITH BAEZ—SAN DOMINGO, ITS CLIMATE AND PEOPLE

The correspondent of the Chicago Tribune who accompanied the Commission to San Domingo, under date of San Domingo City, February 3d, writes as follows:

PRESIDENT GRANT'S LETTER

Mr Wade presented a statement of the action of Congress and read the following letter of authority from President Grant

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D C Jan, 15 1871

His Excellency B Baez, President of the Republic of San Domingo—SIR In accordance with a joint resolution of the two Houses of Congress of the United States, I have appointed three distinguished citizens of the United States, to wit Hon B F Wade, many years a Senator, President A. D White, of Cornell University, and Dr S G Howe distinguished for his philanthropy learning and service in relieving the blind and mute of much of the monotony of life incident to their infirmities by opening to them the world of letters, as a Commission to visit the Republic of San Domingo, and to obtain information called for by the resolution. Associated with the Commission is Judge Allan G Burton Secretary to the same—a gentleman who has honored his country by serving it in a diplomatic capacity. I beg to introduce these gentlemen and ask for them your kind offices.

With great respect, your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT

BAEZ'S REPLY

GENTLEMEN —I have received with much pleasure the autographic note which His Excellency President Grant, has sent me, through so highly appointed a medium. I understand that your mission, ordered by the Congress of the United States, is absolutely of peace. This is the aspiration and object of the Republic. One of the grand motives which have produced these negotiations is that of the development of its riches by means of labor, and to so guarantee the existence of liberty and property of the citizens. You may count on the most ample and absolute liberty in the exercise of your commission. The Government offers whatever data you may consider necessary, and will take especial pleasure in giving you every satisfaction in making your investigation. As to the spontaneity of the resolution of the Dominican people, we desire ardently that you will consult not only the immense majority in favor of annexation, but also those who are opposed to it.

A TALK ON THE ANNEXATION QUESTION

The above is the official translation of the speech. After the formal speeches, the interview took the form of question and answer, Baez asserting that the opposition to annexation was not with the Dominicans, but with the Haytiens. Cabral had no Dominican support worthy of support, in fact he was not in command of a force, commonly styled. His forces and officers were Haytiens and the whole life of the movement was with the Haytien authorities. Mr Wade here said that such a statement was so at variance with the commonly received opinion in the United States that he felt constrained to ask whether it could be relied upon. Baez replied that it was entirely accurate, and to show a basis for it he produced official letters, giving detailed information of the arrangements made by the Haytiens for an incursion, nominally under Cabral, while the commission was here, for the purpose of influencing its opinions. The case made out by Baez certainly showed deep hostility on the part of Hayti to Baez and his plans. The force with which Cabral is advancing Baez gave as one regiment, and with only a prospect that one or two more were about to join him. His real position is sixty miles west of Azua, and he has been constantly along the Haytien border. Even the Dominicans near him have taken no part but fallen back as he advanced. Baez expressed great confidence that he had not overrated the desire of the people for annexation, but hoped the commission would question freely upon that point in all directions. A second and less formal meeting was arranged at Baez's house.

SURVEY OF THE PUBLIC LANDS

The survey of the public lands by the New York Company is going rapidly forward. The contract with the Dominican Government gives them one-fifth of the whole amount. The contract was first made with Fabens, and he arranged with New York capitalists. An interest has been offered to no official person in Washington. The agent of the company here making a survey does not get all the best part of the land. Thus far, $70,000 has been expended in the survey. The company is selecting as far as possible, outside of all doubtful Spanish grants. There are millions of profit in the scheme, if annexation takes place.

FUTURE OPERATIONS

It is the present intention to go from this place, some time next week, to Azua, and visit the region around the Bay of Swae, thence proceed around the north side of the island, probably stopping at Port-au-Prince for one or two days, if deemed advisable. From Puerto Plata, or some point near, either the Commissioners or small parties will visit the great plains to the south and one or two of the principal inland cities.

A SUMMING UP.

Thus far the problems which seem to be regarded as most important are the difficulty of assimilating such a mixed population, the question whether our system of taxation would be submitted to, whether war with Hayti would not follow, and whether our treasury just now can stand the strain of the large appropriation which annexation would require immediately. The magnificence of the foliage, and beauty and grandeur of the mountains, and richness of the country can not be overrated. There is, however, neither energy nor thrift. The Commission hopes to start home soon after the first of March.

IMMIGRATION AND THE WAR.—The number of German emigrants to the United States fell off 30 000 for the year 1870. This was owing entirely to the war with France, and the loss was all sustained in the last six months of the year. For several years past the German element has held the first place in our emigration statistics, succeeding to the Irish, which was formerly the most numerous. With the return of peace, which now seems assured, we may expect to see German immigration assume its full proportion, if it does not exceed it. The distressing and impoverishing effects of the war are likely to quicken the desire to come to this country, where land is still procurable at easy rates, where wages are high, and the opportunities for industry and enterprise most abundant and profitable. The Germans already settled in the United States will be apt to aid their relatives to join them, as the best means for making up for the misfortunes of the war. Enlarged immigration occurring simultaneously with the revival of American credit, will help to stimulate trade and industry, and to hasten the construction of important improvements.

It is related of a down east editor how he sent his only shirt to a "Heathen Chinee" laundryman to be "done up" and he tells how the washing was returned to him, thusly:

"They sent home with our washing yesterday a thing that branches off in two ways a little below the top, like a railway junction, and has puckered frills edged with 'tattin' on each end of the divide. We don't know what it is, and we're a poor, friendless man, with only our virtue, and none but villains would seek to injure that."

Commercial Letter

[Telegraphed to the Alta]

NEW YORK, Feb 25 —There has been no particular movement to note in the California freighting business via Cape Horn during the past week, and the market is only moderately active with no preponderance in any class of freight, unless it be oil. The only noticeable event is the dispatch given to the bark Ino, which vessel finished loading yesterday. The dispatch lately given to vessels in this line is the result of an arrangement effected by them with three of your largest commission houses, who in consideration of having alternate vessels consigned to them, give this line the preference for all the freight controlled by them, and which, in the aggregate, is quite large. The arrangement, which took effect January 1st, was timely as to the future of this trade, and its probability of sustaining three lines via Cape Horn was attracting attention, and it was evident that at least one line would have to withdraw, therefore, in order to strengthen themselves, the above line completed these arrangements, and it has, thus far, worked well with every prospect of its continuance. So far as can be judged, it is likely that after April 1st we shall have but two lines from here at least such is the impression at present, however, the agent of the line most interested does not intimate that he will retire, and until he announces his intentions it will be all guess work.

Rates of freight not strong, though the last quotations hold good. It is likely that before long rates will rule lower, at least, such is my impression, as the two leading lines will have sufficient tonnage to make competition for freighting very lively.

The Ino sails to-day. Her cargo includes 6,700 cases petroleum, 900 cases naphtha, 650 cases oysters, 1,900 boxes candles, 1 400 packages starch, 250 cases lard oil, 86 cases tobacco, 240 barrels whisky, 550 kegs nails, and 2 200 packages powder.

Of the vessels to sail March 5th, the C[illegible] is doing well, having [illegible] railroad material; also 5 000 cases oil. The [illegible] is ready, 1 500 tons on board, including 3 000 cases oil, 500 barrels whisky, 50 barrels rosin, 100 bales oakum, 100 tons coal, and a lot of iron pipe. The Mary E. Packer is about half full, including 4 000 cases oil and 500 cases oysters.

Of merchandise moving, petroleum is still being shipped by Devoe, and Bostwick, and Tilford, also, outside lots of cases. Oesphine and Macy's candles are beginning to move more freely.

The late mild weather has enabled vessels loaded with nails to arrive, and shipments are increasing. Shipments of canned goods and tobacco continue free. Whisky is offered in considerable lots. Movements of [illegible] same as last noted. The [illegible] ments of rosin foot up [illegible] suitable for this trade [illegible] continue to have an eye [illegible] two of the lines are strong [illegible] this respect, and will have [illegible] mands. This shipment is made to anticipate those via the Cape, and, should there be a demand for this brand, further [illegible] will be made overland.

The volume of trade in our general [illegible] has slightly increased and the [illegible] spring trade is more encouraging than [illegible] time. Breadstuffs rule very dull, and prices declined until yesterday when strong [illegible] advices caused by a firmer tone and a portion of the decline recovered. With an increased demand for export to Great Britain and the Continent [illegible] more demand, as it is relatively cheaper than wheat, and for export is more desirable, as it is required for immediate consumption. For wheat there are increased orders for English and Continental markets, but the absence of shipping margins precluded their execution. The market closes strong and firmer. There is no movement in California kinds. Latest Liverpool quotations, 11s 8d.

Grain freights show more animation, with moderate supply of tonnage on the berth to Liverpool, per sail, 6d, per steam, 7d.

Wool continues in good demand, the market is very firm, with a slight advance on the better grades of pulled wools, which are freely taken at full prices. Hops enquired for and close strong.

Nails firm, and an advance probable. Parker Mills are again in operation, after an intermission of eight months.

Teas more quiet.

Business in the stock market is better than of late, and the market still presents a lack of strength. Western Union is decidedly the feature of the week. This stock has been under the manipulation and control of the clique known as the Vanderbilt party, who advanced the stock to 48, and then suffered it to remain dull, while it settled to 46. On Monday the stock again became inactive, and on a large purchase sold up to [illegible] subsequently falling to 44½, reacting again up to 50⅞. To day the excitement continues, and stock has sold at 51⅞, closing at 51½. Western Union bonds, 95¼. It is given out that the ultimate object of the combination operating the stock is to improve its value so as to eventually render it a regular dividend paying investment.

Pacific Mail has been roused from its recent sluggishness and sold at 46⅞, but closed at 45½. The movement is based on the prospect of a subsidy for the China route, and favorable arrangements are made with Pacific roads.

In Pacific mortgages there has been a good business done, chiefly due to the reported action of the Senate Judiciary Committee as favoring the roads and recommending all Government freight designed for the West and the Pacific coast, to be forwarded over the roads. Central gold bonds closed at 93¼, Union (first mortgages) 83⅞, Land grants, 74½, Incomes, 76 with 5 per cent coupons, payable on the 1st of March. The stock has sold at 24¼, closing at 23⅞. Wells, Fargo 40½. Panama, 71¼. California Sevens, 19½.

The export of specie for the week, is $690,048, including $596 684 in bars.

A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Times says:

Senator Sumner, in a letter to Secretary Fish on the high joint commission, which has just leaked out, insisted that Great Britain should apologize for her conduct in recognizing the belligerent rights of the South, and the aid which she extended to the rebellion, that the Alabama claims should be paid, that the claims for depredations committed by other cruisers, such as the Shenandoah, should be placed upon the same footing, and treated in the same manner as those of the Alabama, and, finally, that Great Britain should agree to retire wholly from this continent.

In the Indiana Legislature, two years ago, the Democrats set the example of resigning in a body. Their example has just been followed by the Republicans. So the present Legislature now comes to an end as it did at the last session.

A Reminiscence of General Scott.

One evening, after our rubber, I said to the General, "There is one question I have often wished to ask you, but have been restrained by the fear that it might be improper." The General drew himself up, and said in his emphatic manner, "Sir, you are incapable of asking an improper question." I said, "You are very kind; but if my inquiry is indiscreet, I am sure you will allow it to pass unanswered." "I hear you, Sir," he replied. "Well, then, General, did anything remarkable happen to you on the morning of the battle of Chippewa?" After a brief but impressive silence, he said, "Yes, Sir; something did happen to me—something very remarkable. I will now, for the third time in my life, relate the story:

The 4th day of July, 1815, was one of extreme heat. On that day my brigade skirmished with a British force commanded by General Riall from an early hour in the morning till late in the afternoon. We had driven the enemy down the river some twelve miles to Street's Creek, near Chippewa, where we encamped for the night, our army occupying the west, while that of the enemy was encamped on the east side of the creek. After our tents had been pitched, I observed a flag, borne by a man in peasant's dress, approaching my marquee. He brought a letter from a lady who occupied a large mansion on the opposite side of the creek, informing me that she was the wife of a member of Parliament, who was then at Quebec; that her children, servants, and a young lady friend were alone with her in the house; that Gen. Riall had placed a sentinel before her door; and that she ventured, with great doubts of the propriety of the request, to ask that I would place a sentinel upon the bridge to protect her against stragglers from our camp. I assured the messenger that the lady's request should be complied with. Early the same morning the same messenger, bearing a white flag reappeared with a note from the same lady, thanking me for the protection she had en[illegible], adding that, in acknowledgment of my [illegible], she begged that I would, with such [illegible] my staff as I chose to bring [illegible] the hospitalities of her house [illegible] which had been prepared with [con]siderable attention, and was quite ready. [illegible] upon an impulse which I have never [illegible] analyze or comprehend, I called [illegible] my Aids, Lieuts. Worth and Watts, [illegible] returned with the messenger to the man[sion] [illegible] indicated. We met our hostess [illegible] door, who ushered us into the dining-[room], where breakfast awaited us, and where [the y]oung lady previously referred to was already seated by the coffee-urn. Our hostess, [illegible] be excused for a [few] minutes, retired, [illegible] young lady im[illegible] served our [illegible]. Before we had [illegible] [breakf]ast, Lieut. [illegible] rose from the tab[le] [illegible] his bandana, ([illegible] before the [days] of napkins,) [illegible] had left in his [illegible], on a side table [illegible] window, glancing through which he [illegible] approaching the house on one [illegible] red coats approaching it on the [other] with an evident purpose of surround[ing] [illegible] us, and instantly exclaimed, 'Gen[eral,] we are betrayed!' Springing from the [table] [illegible] the house I saw our danger and remembering Lord Chesterfield had [said] 'whatever it is proper to do, it is [illegible] to do well,' and as we had to [illegible] and my legs were longer than those [of my] companions, I soon outstripped them. [illegible] escape we were fired at, but [illegible] the bridge in safety.

[illegible] shame and mortification at having [illegible] fallen into a trap, that I [illegible] my mind upon the duties which now demanded my undivided attention. [I] knew that I had [com]mitted a great indiscretion in accepting that singular invitation, and that if any disaster resulted from it I richly deserved to lose both my commission and my character [illegible] and myself wondering whether the lady really intended to betray [illegible] whether we had been accidentally observed. The question would recur even amid the excitement of battle. Fortunately my presence and services in the field were not required until [illegible]. Porter and Ripley had been engaged at intervals for several hours so that when my brigade, with Towson's artillery, were ordered to cross Street's [C]reek, my nerves and mind [illegible] had become measurably quieted and restored. I need not describe the battle of Chippewa. That belongs to and is part of the history of our country. It is sufficient to say that at the close of the day we were masters of the position, and that our arms were in no way discredited. The British Army had fallen back, leaving their wounded in our possession. The mansion which I had visited in the morning was the largest house near, and to that the wounded officers in both armies were carried for surgical treatment. As soon as I could leave the field I went over to look after my wounded. I found the English officers lying on the first floor, and our own on the floor above. I saw in the lower room the young lady whom I had met in the morning at the breakfast-table, her white dress all sprinkled with blood. She had been attending to the British wounded. On the second floor, just as I was turning into the room where our officers were, I met my hostess.

[illegible] was quite sufficient to answer the question which I had been asking myself all day. She had intended to betray [us], and nothing but the accident of my Aid [illegible] his handkerchief saved us from capture.

[illegible] afterward, in reflecting upon this in[cident] I was [illegible] doubt whether I had not [mis]interpreted her startled manner as I suddenly encountered her. That unexpected meeting would have occasioned embarrassment in either contingency; and it is so difficult to believe a lady of cultivation and refinement capable of such an act, that I am now, nearly half a century after the event, disposed to give my hostess the benefit of that doubt.

And now, Sir," added the General, "this is the third time in my life I have told this story. [illegible] remember to have been spoken to before on the subject for many years." He looked at me, and seemed to be wondering within himself a few moments, and then said: "Remembering your intimacy with Gen. Worth, I need not inquire how you [came to the] knowledge of our secret."

"[illegible]," I replied, "I have kept [it] faithfully for more than forty years, [illegible] to obtain your own version of [what] struck me as a most remarkable incident [in] your military life." Thurlow Weed, in Harper's Magazine for March.

Cain's Wife.

[From the] New York Ledger.]

If people do not ask questions, how shall they get information? Even if it be only curiosity that prompts the question, an answer [illegible] do good. We don't suppose [any hum]an being cares who Cain's wife was, [for any] particular reason. There is no An[illegible] estate, we presume, dependent on [illegible] of nobility that any one would be [illegible] covet. But, then, in a village where [peop]le are not so much in a hurry but that [they c]an sit down and discuss a matter, many [illegible] questions come up. Here is one of them, which has been on our hands a year, [but] as it has kept through so many ages, it is not likely to spoil in a few months, and so here it is:

"December 17th, 1869.

"Rev. Henry Ward Beecher—Dear Sir: Please to inform me, through the columns of the New York Ledger, who Cain's wife was, and oblige

"A READER OF THE LEDGER."

There is no record of Cain's courtship or [wed]ding. However interesting to the parties [them]selves, it is of no interest to us, except [upon the] supposition that the account in Genesis [of th]e creation of Adam was designed to [exclu]de the supposition that any others had [bee]n created. If Adam and Eve were the sole progenitors of the race, then Cain and Abel, [illegible] must have married their own sisters, [a tr]ansaction which is shocking to the sensibilities of the whole race, at a subsequent stage of development.

[But] many of the Fathers of the Church denied that Adam and Eve, and their children, were the only people on the globe. They affirmed that the text in Genesis very plainly implies that there were other inhabitants besides Adam's family. They allege that verse 14, of chapter 4 of Genesis, plainly implies that the earth was already widely populated. For, when God declared that Cain should be driven out from his family, and made a vagabond in the earth, Cain deprecated the sentence and plead that "everyone that findeth me shall slay me." It was plainly not his family connections that he feared, for he desired not to be driven forth from them. It was the people that he should meet when a wanderer in the earth. Who, then, were these people whom Cain feared to meet when he should have gone forth into the earth?

It is also reasoned by scholars that the most natural method of soothing his fears would have been to tell him, "There are no other people on earth except your father's children." Instead of that, the Lord is represented as falling in with Cain's impression respecting the population of the world, and that He set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him. (Gen. 4: 15.) Still further, it is said that Cain, separating himself from his kindred, went to the land of Nod, east of Edom, "and he built a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son Enoch." The Fathers were pertinently asked: Where did the people come from that lived in this city? That would be an extraordinary state of things which should have enabled Cain to fill up a city, however small, with his own children! And it is inferred, therefore, that there were other people in the land besides the immediate posterity of Adam. If Adam was the only progenitor, Cain must have married his sister. If there were other lines of people, other Adams, as it were, then Cain might have married into other stock.

We do not express any judgment in the matter. We give our correspondent the opinions that have been held in the early days of the Church, but with the statement that almost all modern Christian writers have rejected them.

But as the origin of races has, in our day, assumed an important scientific development, and, as very many able scientists hold to a variety of original race stocks, it is interesting to know that those views have been held before, and upon supposed Biblical grounds.

But are there no more questions about Cain? Does nobody wish to know his wife's name? Does no one wish to know what mark it was which the Lord affixed to Cain? Does no one wish to know how Cain died? Questions must be scarce to leave such points untouched. If Cain is to be raised, he surely ought to be thoroughly dealt with.—Henry Ward Beecher.

LAND DEPARTMENT

OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870

Second—Persons who have valid pre emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect. I. R. MOORES, o21tfdlaw Land Agent O. & C. R. R. Co., Salem

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 7, 1871.

Swamp Lands Again.

A letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office which we publish to-day, fully shows who has been most to blame for the neglect of Oregon land matters.

The act of March 12th, 1860, which extended the provisions of the swamp land act to Oregon and Minnesota, provided that "the selection (of swamp and overflowed lands) to be made from the lands already surveyed in each of the said States, should be made within two years." Governor Whiteaker was advised of this in May, 1860. The State government was then wholly Democratic and remained so for the next two years. The Commissioner of the General Land Office asked the authorities of the State to indicate "whether or not they would make their selections of swamp lands by agents in the field, or by an examination of field notes of public surveys." No notice was taken of this by our Democratic State authorities, and before the Republican party came into power and could take action in the premises, the two years had expired and the State's right to such swamp lands as had already been surveyed was wholly and forever lost. This is the record. Now what party is it through whose neglect the State has lost lands that belonged to it?

But it is said that the Republicans took no action to secure for the State the remainder of the lands. No action was necessary. The grant as to the remainder of the lands was an absolute one and could not be lost by lapse of time. It was not necessary for the State authorities to do anything to save the remainder of the lands; they had only to wait till the Government surveys were extended over them and the State was notified thereof, when they could take such measures for making selections as the General Land Office might indicate or circumstances might require. So the matter stood while the Republicans were in power,—the State losing no lands and the value of the lands gradually increasing by the extension of settlements. But when the opposition came into power again, they determined to try a new scheme. They got up a bill, in the interest of a ring, to seize all the swamp lands and enable speculators to make great fortunes. Through their remissness in 1860 a considerable part of the grant was lost to the State, and through their greed in 1870, a scheme was concocted to enable speculators to seize the remainder of it.

Political Matters in San Francisco.

According to the Stockton Independent, the political elements are very active in San Francisco, although the general election will not take place till next September. Among Democrats it is claimed by the friends of [illegible] and conceded by the opposing wing of the party that Gov. Haight will receive but little support from that city in the State Convention, and that the Johnson and Mc[illegible] wing will control the bay county delegations. This fact is explained by frank-minded Democrats by the statement that Haight is very popular with the people, but the leaders of the party are all against him. [illegible] who several months ago withdrew from the contest, is said to have again entered the arena with the intention of pressing his claims. In the Republican ranks in San Francisco, Booth, Selby and Pacheco appear to have been the three most prominent candidates, and the rapidly developing [illegible] Booth among the merchants is [illegible] presentation of the name of [illegible] who stands well in the mercantile community and who will probably divide that element of strength. The friends of Booth insist that he is the first choice of the rank and file of the party in San Francisco, and that an out and out Booth delegation ought to be sent to the State Convention. On the other hand it is urged that an unpledged delegation should be selected with the liberty to unite upon "the best man, whoever he may be." The several Republican clubs are in hot water on this and other subjects, and considerable work remains to be done before any prediction can be safely made as to how San Francisco will be represented in the State Convention. It seems to be generally believed that any candidate who can go into either State Convention with a united San Francisco delegation will be sure of the nomination.

An Illustrious Precedent.

The bill to secure free and honest elections throughout the United States has passed both Houses of Congress, received the signature of the President and is now a law. Democrats denounced it as an act to place the elections under military control, whereupon the following interesting colloquy took place:

> Mr. Sargent (Rep., Cal.) used against the Democrats the correspondence between Gov. Haight, of California, and President Johnson for the use of military at the last Presidential election in California to carry the State for Seymour and Blair, and said that it would hardly be believed that the same Gov. Haight had recently published a letter announcing himself as a candidate for re election, and that one of his plans was opposition to military interference in elections.
> Mr. Eldridge (Dem., Wis.) asked Mr. Sargent whether he was in favor of it?
> Mr. Sargent said he was in favor of it under such circumstances as existed in the Sixth Ward of New York. But even if he were not, the Democratic party had shown in the illustrious instance he had referred to, that it was in favor of military interference in certain cases.

Jones the Kentucky Democrat and repudiator, backed by some of his friends in Congress, is on the war path against Germany. He introduced a few days since in that body a resolution condemnatory of President Grant's recent message to Congress on the question of raising the rank of our legation at Berlin to one of the first class; and wanted to repudiate any identity between our "glorious Constitution" and the "so-called Constitution" of a country which is controlled by a tyranny under which the people know no freedom. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Alfred Richardson, member of the Georgia Legislature, has a way of his own to enforce peace in the neighborhood of Watkinsville, where he resides. One night, recently, several shots were fired through his house, and under the supposition that the occupant had received his quietus, the attacking force entered the house. But fortunately Mr. Richardson was not so dead but that he was able to kill the leading intruder, when the others fled. It is hardly necessary to add, but we will do so, that Richardson is a Republican, and his dead assailant proved to be a Democratic neighbor. This is heralded in the Kuklux organs as a Radical outrage.

The Herald dwells with much unction on Judge Boise's declaration that the Legislature is the sovereign branch of the State government. We subscribe to that doctrine. But we remember in the days when Andrew Johnson was trying to make himself the sovereign authority in the United States, the Herald denied that the National Legislature was the sovereign branch of the Government.

The Settlement with England.

A letter from Washington to the New York Tribune gives many interesting statements in regard to our settlement of vexed questions with Great Britain, through the agency of the High Commission. It is understood by our Government, so this letter states,—and the writer says he has the highest authority for the statement,—that the prime purpose on the part of Great Britain in opening the negotiation which has led to the appointment of the Commission, is to find ground on which she can abandon her position in respect to the Alabama claims, and concede her liability for the depredations of that cruiser. England, this writer asserts, aims at but one thing in this negotiation. That is to have the dangerous and troublesome question involved in this matter put in train for peaceable settlement. The chief reason for her anxiety on this subject is said to be this:

> Ever since the day which closed the civil war, and concluded the cycle of extraordinary transactions which established the position of the United States as one of the greatest military powers of the globe, English statesmen have foreseen clearly that they must prepare to surrender British America. Every act of the British Government since that day, touching the subject, has been in harmony with this idea. She has broken up her garrisons; she has recalled her troops from the several provinces; she has directed and enabled them to form a league among themselves, and she has given them money to build a railroad to connect their remoter extremities more closely together. She has told them they must hereafter look out for themselves, and take care of themselves. And, further, that whenever they wished to sever their connection with the home government, the Crown would interpose no objections. She has done all this openly, distinctly, and before world without disguise, within the last five years. If a great prospective national metamorphosis can be more distinctly recognized and more rapidly provided for than this has been, we are at a loss to know how. We shall look in vain in history, we imagine, for an example of a more ready perception of an unwelcome national change, or a more graceful and intelligent acquiescence in it.

It is therefore held that the question with England is, how the great prospective event, so clearly foreshadowed to her, can be consummated without bloodshed, without cost, without contest and without national humiliation. England especially desires to avoid a struggle with every other power, so long as this Alabama question remains unadjusted, because in case she became involved in war, innumerable Alabamas would issue from our ports; the result would be war with the United States and the next inevitable result would be the conquest of British North America. England sees this; hence, according to the writer in the Tribune, she is anxious for the settlement of so dangerous a question. This, he maintains, is the view taken by the Administration at Washington. England has come to regard herself as playing a vicarious part in the affairs of this continent, and is quite willing to bow herself out of all connection with them. The writer says further:

> These are considerations which we ourselves must take into account, and never fail to remember, as each successive chapter of this interesting development unfolds before our eyes. The labors of the High Commission are all on the line of the historic march here delineated. They are a part of the final whole. Their character, so far a England is concerned, is foreordained. An overruling necessity constrains them. There is no volition except within certain defined limits. The Commission may debate methods and details, but they are constrained by the force of an inexorable necessity to reach a prefigured result.

He therefore holds that the United States has a great advantage in the negotiations now going on, and expresses the opinion in a most positive way that if our Commissioners hold the firm and steady attitude which the more comprehensive facts in the case will fully justify, we shall have an end, once for all, of these troublesome questions. We shall soon see whether the United States will be so fortunate.

Axtell on Haight.

In a recent speech in Congress S. B. Axtell, Democratic Congressman from San Francisco, gave Gov. Haight of California the benefit of the following criticism for his action in calling on the United States military forces to interfere in elections:

> And here allow me to refer to a most unfortunate state of facts, brought to light by a resolution introduced by one of my colleagues: That the Governor of California, elected by Democratic votes, so far forgetting his faith and the faith of his party in the people, was imprudent enough to call, before he had convened his Legislature, before he had exhausted the power of his State, upon the authorities at Washington to send troops to San Francisco to preserve order in an approaching election! His act was one which cannot be justified by any Democrat in California, or in the United States. And that Governor can take warning, as all public men who doubt the people can take warning, that the people will resume the power which they delegated to him, and will show that they are unwilling that any of their officers shall follow this vicious example of calling Federal bayonets to the discharge of that duty which the citizens of the States are abundantly able to discharge themselves—the maintenance of peace and order at their own elections.

Political Composition of Congress.

The political composition of the new Congress is thus stated by a dispatch from Washington, dated February 27th:

> McPherson, clerk of the House of Representatives, has completed a list of members of the House, having for this purpose taken certificates of the Governors of the several States. The certificates of the members from the Third District, Arkansas, has not yet been received. Following is a classification of the politics; Republican, 130; Democratic (including the Third District of Arkansas), 96; Independent, namely, James G. Bliss, Missouri, 1. Total, 227. There is a vacancy in Illinois, caused by the election of Logan to the State; one vacancy in Michigan, caused by the election of Terry to the Senate, making a total of 229. Not elected, —New Hampshire, 3; Connecticut 4; Texas, 4; California, 3. Total number of members, 243.
> There are from 12 to 15 contested seats. Of the 96 Democrats above mentioned, two —Dubois, of Georgia, and Rogers of North Carolina, and probably Waddell, of North Carolina—are barred out by the Fourteenth Amendment. They will not be able to qualify until their disabilities are removed by Congress.

The returns of the second enumeration of the population of New York city show an excess of 16,767 over the census of last summer, which gave the total population at 925,485. The largest gains were in the 5th, 13th, 15th, 16th, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22d wards, almost every other ward showing a falling off from the first or census of last summer. General Walker, Superintendent of the Census, appears to be entirely right, when, in his report to the Secretary of the Interior, he says that, considering the difference in the conditions of a city in summer and winter, this result cannot but be accepted as a signal vindication of the census as originally taken.

All the Eastern papers agree that the sagacity of the President was never more strongly illustrated than in the choice of the members of the High Commission to settle our disputes with England.

An act of Congress creates a Territorial Government in the District of Columbia. The Governorship has been tendered to A. S. Solomons of Washington City, but declined for business reasons.

A lad in Bridgeport is commended for his fortitude because when a drop press cut off three of his fingers he looked at the bleeding stumps and exclaimed: "I'll bet mother'll cry when she sees that!"

THE TERRITORIES.

A son of Gen. Tilton, sixteen years of age, died at Olympia a few days ago.

The Olympia Tribune advertises for sale the terminus of the link of railroad to unite the Columbia and the Sound: "Started at four thousand acres and four miles frontage by Nisqually! How much do you bid, Olympia? How much? Budd's Inlet, Tumwater and Doffelmeyer's Point! speak up! Going! going! going!"

The business of the Land Office at Olympia for the month of February, was as follows: Number of acres sold for cash, 5,884 53; homestead entries, 2,123 91; Agricultural College scrip, 632 08; final proof on donation claims, 400; declaratory statements, 7,360. Total amount of land disposed of in February, 16,401 60 acres.

The exports from Puget Sound to Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, for the seven years to January 1st, 1871, amounted to $160,795. The exports comprised assorted lumber, shingles, spars, laths, pickets, knees, piles, flour, fruit and vegetables. In all there were sixty one cargoes, sixty of which were from Port Gamble, shipped by the Puget Mill Company; the only other cargo was shipped by Mr. Philip Keach, and valued at $3,518.

An Olympia paper tells the following incredible story: A few weeks ago, a man came to Olympia from Hood's Canal with a wife that was not his own, though the couple roomed together here as man and wife. A week later the lawful husband came up, but made no ado about the conduct of the pair. On the contrary, it received his hearty sanction, and the three made apparently a happy family. Before leaving Olympia, all three occupied the same bed. A species of polygamy, this, with the sexes reversed.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

All the miners about Yreka are very busy,—more so than for several years. Recent storms have given them an abundance of water.

A farmer on the Bolsas Rancho, in the Stearns grant, near Los Angeles, is said to have raised the past season 700 bushels of corn on five acres of land, or at the rate of 150 bushels to the acre.

In the Northern District of California N. E. Whitesides of Yuba, Barclay Henley and George Pearce, of Sonoma, and J. B. Lamar, of Mendocino, are spoken of on the Democratic side as aspirants for Congress.

Inside of a term of seven months the administration of the Alms House and Hospital at San Francisco, has exhausted the entire fund of $120,000 provided for their running expenses, and the payment of the last month's salaries has overrun that amount.

The Yreka Journal tells us that the railroad question is kicking up a stiff breeze in the Democratic ranks in that State, but that the chances are that this party of unwavering principles will ignore the railroad question altogether and substitute the Chinaman again, in order to harmonize the discordant elements.

In California the Democratic press is making a great hullabaloo about the loss of the foreign miners' tax. The fact is, the foreign miners' license tax never was constitutional. It was made by Democrats for all foreigners, without regard to race or color, and Democratic Sheriffs have time and again sold out property of European foreign miners as well as Chinese miners for the tax, many times with a six shooter leveled on them. It is supposed that the next Democratic "principle" will be a demand that no Chinamen shall leave the State or commit suicide, lest there may be further loss of property, road, poll and hospital tax.

CURRENT NOTES.

Henry D. Cooke, brother of Jay Cooke, has been appointed Governor of the District of Columbia.

A Times' Washington special says the statement is not officially made but is very generally credited that Minister Blow has resigned the mission to Brazil, and his successor will be nominated to the Senate soon.

A Convention of the National Labor Party of the United States is announced to be held in Columbus, Ohio, on the third Wednesday of October, 1871, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President.

The Nevada Legislature propose to spend $5,000 for historical paintings to ornament the State House at Carson. It is probable that the hotel and boarding house keepers of that Capital would prefer to see a bill passed providing for the payment of Legislative salaries.

The present value of the bequests to Philadelphia for charitable purposes, with the exception of Mr. Girard's, is $455,395, the income of which last year was $24,017. The Stephen Girard bequest consists of real estate, personal property, &c., assessed at $3,434,918, and over 20,000 acres of land outside of the city. The cash receipts from the estate in 1870 amounted to $661,140 07.

Having given currency to the story that Andrew Jackson Davis had renounced his belief in spirit intercourse and "gone back on" mediumship and spiritualism in general, it is only simple justice to say that he has authorized the Orange (N. Y.) Chronicle to contradict the story. He has only come out strongly "against the abuse of mediumship and the errors of the doctrine adopted by many spiritualists."

As regards the new staff of the New York Independent, Mr. Bowen, the proprietor, though wielding editorial power, does not perform editorial work. The superintending editor is the Rev. Edward Eggleston, D. D. The office editor is the Rev. S. H. Ward. The Rev. Dr. Spear is rather an editorial writer than an editor. The venerable Dr. Leavitt is employed in the religious department, as the Rev. Washington Gladden will be also after the 1st of April.

The vast region between the valley of the Platte and the eastern base of the Sierra and Cascade ranges is rapidly filling up with stock raisers. They do not jostle each other; because nearly all of them occupy as much territory as is comprised in the smaller States of New England. Herds of cattle numbering from 5,000 to 10,000 head, are found on the high table lands and in the valleys, while the more mountainous country sustains flocks of sheep, which are producing some of the best wool sent to market. The land occupied belongs to the Government, and at present does not cost the occupants a cent—not even for taxes. By common consent, one herdsman does not trespass upon the territory of another, and each decides for himself how much is necessary to supply pasture for his cattle.

PERSONAL ITEMS.

Minister Bancroft gave a grand party at Berlin in commemoration of Washington's birthday. The American residents united with him in doing honor to the anniversary.

Alvan Flanders, the played-out ex Governor of Washington Territory, is figuring politically in San Francisco. He has not paid his debts in this quarter, and probably never will.

It is stated that Geo. R. Helm of Linn county is putting himself up as the next Democratic candidate for Congress. We reckon he won't get the nomination. He is not in favor with the powers that rule the party.

On the Fay matter, the Eugene Guard says: The intemperate abuse which has been heaped upon him by some of our cotemporaries before he has been heard in his own defense, founded upon the exaggerated accounts that we always hear of such events, is hardly excusable.

The New York Herald says: J. W. Forney, of Pennsylvania, is mentioned as the probable new Postmaster General, and he is a man who can make the forty thousand post offices of the country a harmonious working system for the country and for the Administration.

Mr. Slater of this State, seems to have been present at the opening of Congress. It is to be regretted that Judge Wilson did not go on and claim the seat. The Republican majority in Congress would have had precedents established by the Oregon Legislature for giving it to him.

A consignment of 12,000 pounds of buffalo meat and 100 antelopes was lately received in Boston, and epicures thereabouts are daily expecting from Wyoming Territory a large lot of black-tailed deer, sage hens and Rocky Mountain rabbits, none of which kinds of game have ever before been received in that market.

An old fellow who took part in the late rebellion was one day blowing in the village tavern to a crowd of admiring listeners, and boasting of his many bloody exploits, when he was interrupted by the question: "I say, old Joe, how many rebels did you kill during the war?" "How many rebels did I kill, sir, how many did I kill? Well, I don't know just, 'zactly how many; but I know this much, I killed as many of them as they did o' me!"

In their defeat by the Germans the French may find a grain of comfort in the fact that the Germans have adopted the French system of weights and measures. The new system came into use with the beginning of 1871, and is really a very important event. Its adoption is a triumph of French science and ingenuity.

REV. P. S. KNIGHT, Salem..........................March 7.

Tickets for the Course, $2 00; Single Tickets, 50 cents

THE SIXTH LECTURE OF THE COURSE WILL be delivered by

REV. P. S. KNIGHT,

Of Salem,

On Tuesday Evening, March 7th,

At 7½ o'clock.

Subject—"A Corrected Estimate of the Eagle Bird."

"Well, then Shadow-bird or Substance—roming from ethereal distance
Where, perchance the Great Departed to the heights of wisdom soar,
Tell me of your curious mission, passing thus before my vision—
Dost thou come from fields Elysian? Art thou skilled in modern lore?
If, to me, thou e'er speak falsely, mayest thou wander evermore
On the 'dark Plutonian shore.'"

It is generally admitted that the American people are given to boasting and braggadocio. The lofty flight and the loud scream of our "Eagle Bird" can be witnessed at every public demonstration. Vanity, arrogance, intolerance and unblushing assumption float, as it were, in the very air. In the family, to the neighborhood, in the habits which business begets, in the political affairs of the country, we meet the same spirit of degrading boastfulness; and it is the curse of education in many parts of our land that it excites mere vanity, while it instills no lofty ideas of citizen duty, and no endeavors to attain a noble manhood.

The Rev. Mr. Knight is a man of large and varied reading, an earnest, energetic speaker, and a popular lecturer. He has chosen a subject, unique but practical, and his hearers can depend upon spending the evening both pleasantly and profitably.

Poisonous Medicines.

The theory that the virus of disease can be safely counteracted by doses of poison, is false and dangerous Within the last twenty five years, not less than a score of virulent poisons have been added to the repository of the medical profession They are given in small doses, otherwise they would destroy life immediately ; but even in minute quantities, they produce, ultimately, very disastrous effects It is unwise and unphilosophical to employ as remedies powerful and fulminating drugs, which in subjugating one disease, sow the seeds of another still more unmanageable None of those terrible medicaments operates with as much directness and certainty upon the causes of disease as Hostetter s Stomach Bitters a tonic and corrective, without a single deleterious ingredient in its composition. Arsenic and quinia are given for intermittents ; bromide potassium for nervous disorders, strychnine and prussic acid for general debility, mercury in various forms, for liver complaint preparations of chloroform and opium for sleeplessness, and yet these deadly drugs do not compare, as specifics for the diseases above enumerated, with that wholesome vegetable in vigorant and alterative, while they are all so pernicious that it is astonishing any physician should take the responsibility of prescribing them Let invalids, for their own sakes try the Bitters before they resort to the poisons The relief they will experience from a course of the harmless specific, will render a recourse to the unsafe preparations referred to quite unnecessary

A Reminiscence of General Scott.

One evening, after our rubber, I said to the General, "There is one question I have often wished to ask you, but have been restrained by the fear that it might be improper." The General drew himself up, and said in his emphatic manner, "Sir, you are incapable of asking an improper question." I said, "You are very kind; but if my inquiry is indiscreet, I am sure you will allow it to pass unanswered." "I hear you, Sir," he replied. "Well, then, General, did anything remarkable happen to you on the morning of the battle of Chippewa?" After a brief but impressive silence, he said, "Yes, Sir; something did happen to me—something very remarkable. I will now, for the third time in my life, relate the story:

The 4th day of July, 1815, was one of extreme heat. On that day my brigade skirmished with a British force commanded by General Riall from an early hour in the morning till late in the afternoon. We had driven the enemy down the river some twelve miles to Street's Creek, near Chippewa, where we encamped for the night, our army occupying the west, while that of the enemy was encamped on the east side of the creek. After our tents had been pitched, I observed a flag, borne by a man in peasant's dress, approaching my marquee. He brought a letter from a lady who occupied a large mansion on the opposite side of the creek, informing me that she was the wife of a member of Parliament, who was then at Quebec; that her children, servants, and a young lady friend were alone with her in the house; that Gen. Riall had placed a sentinel before her door; and that she ventured, with great doubts of the propriety of the request, to ask that I would place a sentinel upon the bridge to protect her against stragglers from our camp. I assured the messenger that the lady's request should be complied with. Early the same morning the same messenger, bearing a white flag returned with a note from the same lady, [illegible] me for the protection she had enjoyed, [illegible] that, in acknowledgment of my [illegible] begged that I would, with such [illegible] staff as I chose to bring [illegible] hospitalities of her house [illegible] which had been prepared with considerable attention, and was quite ready. [illegible] upon an impulse which I have never [illegible] to analyze or comprehend, I called [illegible] my Aids, Lieuts. Worth and Watts, [illegible] returned with the messenger to the mansion [illegible] indicated. We met our hostess [illegible], who ushered us into the dining-[illegible] breakfast awaited us, and where [illegible] lady previous[illegible] referred to was already seated by the [illegible]. Our hostess, [illegible] excused [illegible] and the young lady [illegible]. Before [illegible] breakfast, Lieut. [illegible] from the [illegible] his bandana, [illegible] napkins,) [illegible] side table [illegible] window [illegible] which he saw [illegible] the house on one [illegible] approaching it on the [illegible] evident purpose of surrounding it and us. [illegible] instantly exclaimed, 'General, we are betrayed!' Springing from the table and leaving the house I saw our danger and remembering Lord Chesterfield had said, Whatever [illegible] is proper to do, it is proper to do [illegible] and as we had to run and our legs were longer than those [illegible] companions I soon outstripped them. [illegible] made our escape we were fired at, but [illegible] the bridge in safety.

[illegible] tell so much shame and mortification at having so nearly fallen into a trap, that I could scarcely [illegible] my mind upon the duties which now demanded [illegible] undivided attention. I knew that I had [illegible] a great indiscretion in accepting that [illegible] invitation, and that if any disaster resulted from it I richly deserved to lose both my commission and my character. I [illegible] constantly [illegible] myself wondering whether the lady really intended to betray us or whether we had been accidentally observed. The [illegible] would recur even amid the excitement of battle. Fortunately my presence and services in the field were not required until [illegible] Porter and Ripley had been engaged at intervals for several hours so that when my brigade, with Towson's artillery, were ordered to cross Street's Creek, my nerves and confidence had become measurably quieted and restored. I need not describe the battle of Chippewa. That belongs to and is part of the history of our country. It is sufficient to say that at the close of the day we were masters of the position, and that our arms were in no way discredited. The British Army had fallen back leaving their wounded in our possession. The mansion which I had visited in the morning was the largest house near, and to that the wounded officers in both armies were carried for surgical treatment. As soon as I could leave the field I went over to look after my wounded. I found the English officers lying on the first floor, and our own on the floor above. I saw in the lower room the young lady whom I had met in the morning at the breakfast-table, her white dress all sprinkled with blood. She had been attending to the British wounded. On the second floor just as I was turning into the room where our officers were, I met my hostess.

[illegible] was quite sufficient to answer the question which I had been asking myself all day. She had not intended to betray me, and nothing but the accident of my Aid using his handkerchief saved us from capture.

[illegible] afterward, in reflecting upon this incident, I was [illegible] doubt whether I had not [illegible] her startled manner as I suddenly encountered her. That unexpected meeting would have occasioned embarrassment in either contingency; and it is so difficult to believe a lady of cultivation and refinement capable of such an act, that I am now, nearly half a century after the event, disposed to give my hostess the benefit of that [illegible]

And now, sir," added the General, "this is the third time in my life I have told this [illegible] remember to have been [illegible] the subject for many years." He looked at me, and seemed to be wondering within himself a few moments, and [illegible] "Remembering your intimacy [illegible] I need not inquire how you [illegible] knowledge of our secret."

"[illegible]" I replied, "I have kept [illegible] for more than forty years, [illegible] to obtain your own version of [illegible] as a most remarkable incident [illegible] your military life. — Thurlow Weed, in Harper's Magazine for March.

Cain's Wife.

[From the New York Ledger.]

If people do not ask questions, how shall they get information? Even if it be only curiosity that prompts the question, an answer [illegible] designed. We don't suppose [illegible] human being cares who Cain's wife was, [illegible] reason. There is no An[illegible] estate, we presume, dependent on [illegible] of nobility that any one would be [illegible] to covet. But, then, in a village where [illegible] are not so much in a hurry but that [illegible] sit down and discuss a matter, many [illegible] questions come up. Here is one of them, which has been on our hands a year, [illegible] as it has kept through so many ages, it is not likely to spoil in a few months, and so here it is:

"December 17th, 1869.

"Rev. Henry Ward Beecher—Dear Sir: Please to inform me, through the columns of the New York Ledger, who Cain's wife was, and oblige

"A READER OF THE LEDGER."

There is no record of Cain's courtship or wedding. However interesting to the parties themselves, it is of no interest to us, except [illegible] the supposition that the account in Genesis [illegible] the creation of Adam was designed to [illegible] the supposition that any others had [illegible] created. If Adam and Eve were the sole progenitors of the race, then Cain and Abel, [illegible] must have married their own [illegible] connection which is shocking to the [illegible] of the whole race, at a subsequent stage of development.

[illegible] many of the Fathers of the Church de[illegible] that Adam and Eve, and their children, were the only people on the globe. They af[illegible] that the text in Genesis very plainly implies that there were other inhabitants besides Adam's family. They allege that verse 14, of chapter 4 of Genesis, plainly implies that the earth was already widely populated. For, when God declared that Cain should be driven out from his family, and made a vagabond in the earth, Cain deprecated the sentence and plead that "everyone that findeth me shall slay me." It was plainly not his family connections that he feared, for he desired not to be driven forth from them. It was the people that he should meet when a wanderer in the earth. Who, then, were these people whom Cain feared to meet when he should have gone forth into the earth?

It is also reasoned by scholars that the most natural method of soothing his fears would have been to tell him, "There are no other people on earth except your father's children." Instead of that, the Lord is represented as falling in with Cain's impression respecting the population of the world, and that He set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him. (Gen 4:15.) Still further, it is said that Cain, separating himself from his kindred, went to the land of Nod, east of Edom, "and he built a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son Enoch." The Fathers were pertinently asked: Where did the people come from that lived in this city? That would be an extraordinary state of things which should have enabled Cain to fill up a city, however small, with his own children! And it is inferred, therefore, that there were other people in the land besides the immediate posterity of Adam. If Adam was the only progenitor, Cain must have married his sister. If there were other lines of people, other Adams, as it were, then Cain might have married into other stock.

We do not express any judgment in the matter. We give our correspondent the opinions that have been held in the early days of the Church, but with the statement that almost all modern Christian writers have rejected them.

But as the origin of races has, in our day, assumed an important scientific development, and, as very many able scientists hold to a variety of original race stocks, it is interesting to know that those views have been held before, and upon supposed Biblical grounds.

But are there no more questions about Cain? Does nobody wish to know his wife's name? Does no one wish to know what mark it was which the Lord affixed to Cain? Does no one wish to know how Cain died? Questions must be scarce to leave such points untouched. If Cain is to be raised, he surely ought to be thoroughly dealt with.—Henry Ward Beecher.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the District of Oregon.—The undersigned hereby gives notice that a second general meeting of the creditors of the Salem Lumber Company, bankrupt, will be held at the City of Portland in said District on the 23d day of March, 1871, at 10 o'clock A. LAND DEPARTMENT
OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands coterminous with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government. The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim, he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect. I. R. MOORES,
